Biographical Sketch

William H. Huddle was born in Wytheville, Virginia, on 12 February 1847. He served in the Confederate Army and after the Civil War settled in Paris, Texas to work in his father's gunsmith shop. Huddle studied painting in Virginia with his cousin, Flavius Fisher, a portraitist in Washington D.C., and in New York at the National Academy of Design before establishing a painting studio in Austin, Texas in 1876. Huddle traveled to Munich to further hone his portrait painting skills in anticipation of commissions from the Texas legislature. Huddle is largely known for his portraits of Texas governors, politicians, and depictions of the Texas war of independence and the battle of San Jacinto. Many of these paintings are displayed at the Texas State Capitol. Huddle married artist Nannie Zenobia Carter in 1889. He died in Austin on 23 March 1892.
